

Set up your GeoCities site in a jiffy, and experiment with the available styles installed to access it though. Also, the PageBuilder takes a while to open if you are using a dial-up connection. For more customised pages, you can create your own page, then upload the pages and the associated files into your GeoCities account. Upload files that size up to 5 MB by clicking on Easy Upload in the Advanced Toolbox section of your

Brinkster

The basic free account at Brinkster (www.brinkster.com) entitles you to a maximum of 30 MB space. Brinkster

Brinkster is free, has a clean interface, but limited features

Getting free space

Several Web sites offer free space to host your Web site. Most of them have a decent amount of space. They also come with basic Web site building tools and wizards to guide you through such services.

FreeServers

FreeServers (www.freeservers.com)

is yet another place where you can access Web space for free. The basic account provides you 12 MB space, with an upper file-size limit of 256 KB. FreeServers also gives out free Web-hosting space for any of your domain names. For that though, the page will have its ad banners.

150m

Huge is definitely what you call 150m.com's (www.150m.com) offer of 100 MB free space—restricted to a maximum of 1 MB for individual file sizes. 150m allows for FTP access to your space on their site. It also lets you redirect your domain names to the pages that you have put up here. Finally, 150m.com itself has a simple Web site creation tool and additional tweaks for your pages.

Space, more space

For those of you who would like still more space, check out O-F.com (www.o-f.com). The free basic free account gives you 100 MB of space, 150m.com style. You are limited to a daily bandwidth of 40 MB. The user manager interface is very similar to that of 150m.

com, so if you have been looking for lots of space, try this free web space service as well. Apart from a site builder tool, there's a plus point for using this service—their free FTP services, just like 150m.com. This way, when it comes to uploads, you are not restricted to some browser-based file manager. Again, for all the extras such as FrontPage Extensions, you would need to be a paid account user.

Templates

Web sites

Web site templates are a great way to start working with, since they come complete with images and interlinked pages. Start with MyFreeTemplates (www.myfreetemplates.com) that hosts a variety of templates for personal as well as business Web sites.

Newsletters

Now that you have your Web site up and running, it makes sense to let the whole world know, and what better way than a newsletter? Get free newsletter templates at MyFreeTemplates (www.myfreetemplates.com), and start working on despatching them. Of course, e-mail etiquette demands that you

MyFreeTemplates gives you an easy way of making classy looking sites give people the option of receiving them, and not spam mercilessly. ■