

Your fashion navigator?

Ahoy Digit! I have been a regular reader of your magazine for quite a few years now, and most of my computer knowledge (little as it is) has been acquired through your magazine and CDs. I am also a die-hard First Person Shooter gaming fan.

Maresh Benkar

I have a suggestion. For years now, my wife Anu has been jealous of my FPS gaming and your magazine. She says Digit just keeps me realising how outdated my PC gets every year, even with upgrades. Yeah, yeah, I know that today's best is tomorrow's crap. But your magazine keeps me abreast of all the latest technologies, and I do learn a bit with each issue. I am a doctor and she is a fashion designer.

I would like a page (no more please) dedicated to various software with demos on CD (not system heavy though) in the fields of fashion, modelling, designing, recipe-cocktail collection, family photograph collection, edited from a woman's perspective, thereby keeping myself still one step away from the saying... 'If you can't beat them, join them'.

Jean Mathew

Via e-mail

Dear Jean,

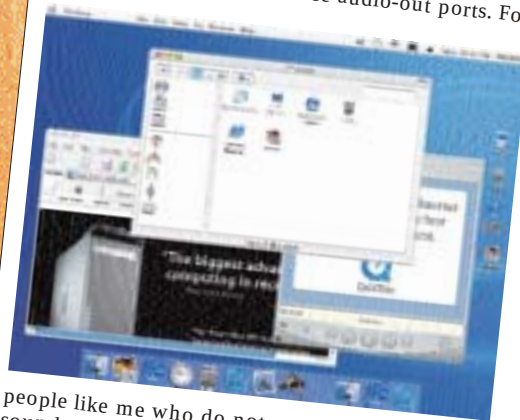

Firstly, thank you for your kind words. It is feedback from readers like you that keeps us motivated month after month. We have indeed taken cognizance of your suggestion, and we will try and implement it as soon as we can.

digit

Tip that!

This is with reference to Digit's section on home theatre systems in March 2004. There is a useful thing to remember, which I would like to share with readers of Digit who have Intel D865 motherboards.

I have a D865 board with a 2.6 GHz CPU with hyperthreading, and the motherboard comes with software that allows you to connect a 6.1 channel speaker setup on to the three audio-out ports. For people like me who do not want to buy a separate sound card for surround sound, or maybe cannot afford it, this is a cheap and versatile option.

And one for the road: I converted my Windows desktop into a Macintosh OS X Panther desktop, and I am proud to say that I nearly fooled one Mac user—until he found windows task manager running in the background.

Pranav Naik

Via e-mail

Dear Pranav,

You have a knack for the unusual, and there is no doubt in our mind that your tips will be useful to all our readers. As for your fooling the Mac user is concerned, well, all we can say is: Congratulations!

digit

Six to a dozen

I must admit upfront that I am not a regular reader of Digit, since I can afford to buy only six of the 12 issues of every year. But, I must add that the March issue of Digit was brilliant, and I more than glad to get the software provided with the Mindware CD.

I had to buy the issue once I saw the contents, and yes, I was not disappointed since the graphics were stunning. Getting know about speaker enhancements in the home theatre section was good, and I understood it quite well, despite the fact that I am not a technologist.

Ashish Anand

Via e-mail

Dear Ashish,

We are sorry you cannot buy all 12 issues of the magazine in a year. However, please do keep coming back to the news-stands to check out our content. Who know, you may just be tempted to buy all 12!

digit

Patch me up

Viruses, worms and Trojans are surely one of the biggest risks a computer is exposed to. Apart from running virus scanners, it is possible to minimise this risk by downloading and applying the so many Windows patches that Microsoft releases at regular intervals.

The only problem is that most users are not aware of this or do not have the resources (read 'high bandwidth') to download such patches. I would request you to start a section on your CD, which contains these downloaded patches. This could be the biggest service you could do to your readers.

Karanvir Singh

Via e-mail

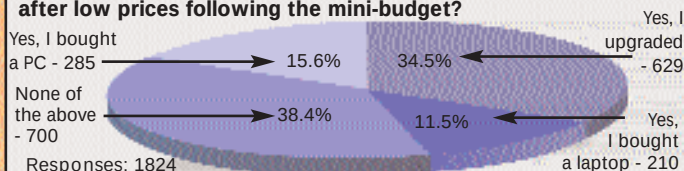

Dear Karanvir,

Your wish is our command. Check out the Bagle / Beagle patch on the Mindware CD with this issue.

digit

digit READERPOLLS

Have you bought a new PC or a laptop, or upgraded your system after low prices following the mini-budget?

Your vote counts

This month's question:

How DVD savvy are you?

- | | |
|---|---|
| ☐ I own a DVD-ROM | ☐ I plan to buy a DVD/DVD-R soon |
| ☐ I own a DVD-writer | ☐ What's the point? I'll never buy one |

Log on to www.thinkdigit.com and vote