

Round and fast!

Pluses: It has a small footprint, weighs just 6.5 Kg, and measures just 245 mm in depth and 367 mm in width. Dual-colour

This printer is best suited for small and medium businesses, as well as DTP houses—where the pages printed are usually different from each other, as opposed to multiple copies of the same document. The 3200 can also be used as a network printer—you can plug in a C-6200U network card.

Good things come in small packages

The printer also comes with a Toner Save button—Samsung claims this saves around 40 per cent in ink. The front panel consists of just one multi-functional button and two indicating LED's. The printer also supports a manual paper feed

The body is milky white, decorated in slate grey. Despite its small size of 13.7 x 14 x 7.6 inches, the printer features a removable paper tray that holds up to 250 sheets. The upper body serves as the output tray but can hold only about 40 sheets, after which the papers start flying around—the flap to hold the print-outs in place is very small.

At Rs 16,000, this printer is ideally suited for a typical small office, and is a good buy for those on the lookout for a small, fast, good quality laser printer. It may not be suitable for a large organisations due to the lack of networking capabilities, the small paper capacity, and poor paper handling.
