requirements, you can choose a machine that has either an A4 or an A3 format. Out of the eight MFDs, the models from Sharp, Ricoh, Toshiba and Canon sported the A3 format, while the rest were standard A4 machines. MFDs of the A3 format form a niche segment, and are a viable option for DTP processes and marketing departments that need to print or scan large brochures. We sub-divided this category on the basis of the paper sizes supported-A4 and A3. First, we take a look at a more popular A4 category.
