

Enter

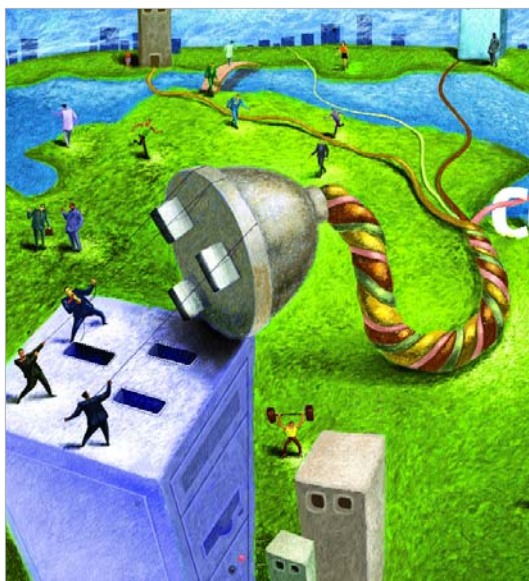

22
Bharat Dabholkar talks about what tech means to him

22
Apple's Tiger has serious issues

28
Samsung and MS will partner on next Xbox

30
Are the DVD format wars finally going to come to an end?

Hello, Convergence!

50 Hello, Convergence!

In this special issue, we look at convergence from every possible angle. We've got a battery of guest columnists lined up, and we also present Digit's take on convergence

Guest Columns

64 Of Bits, Atoms, And Softwear

Nicholas Negroponte on the bit switch and wearable computers

86 Human-Machine Convergence

Kevin Warwick on the need to converge with machines

94 Convergence Is Not Congruence

Anil K Gupta on convergence in the Indian context

99 Technologies On The Verge...

Punya Mishra on three types of convergence

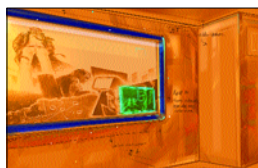

107 The Inevitability Of Technology-Led Transformation

Ganesh Natarajan on change

Contents Magazine

58 One World, One Home

The first place you interact with converged devices could be your home. So what will your home look like?

68 The Ultimate Converged Accessories

Calling all geeks! Convergence promises to deliver the stuff that geek dreams are made of

72 Crash Landing

We take a look at products that were driven by convergence but weren't well-received by the world

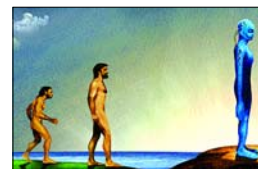

75 The Name Is Connected. Dr Connected

The gadgets in James Bond movies exemplify convergence. Here's a sampler

80 Whither Mankind?

Will we converge with machines at some point in our future? Is it inevitable?

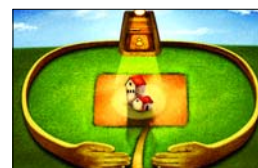

91 Applied Convergence

'Convergence' is not a hyped word—far from it. We take a look at practical applications

96 Secure Your Home Now!

Home security is big, and poised to become bigger. A look at the gadgets that are helping secure our homes

105 The Top Five Wired Nations

A look at the most-wired, most tech-savvy countries on the face of the earth

