

The Digital World

114 Remote Control Your PC Applications

Using your TV tuner card's remote, you can control many PC applications wirelessly

129 Print Photos Using Your Inkjet MFD

Your home inkjet MFD can, of course, be put to a variety of uses—photo printing included

133 Wall-Mounting An LCD Panel

For those of you lucky enough to own an LCD panel, here's how to mount it

137 Adding Effects To Your Home Videos

So you thought only the pros could make professional-looking videos? Here's how to add effects and make your home-shot videos look pro

141 Back Up Using A Portable Drive

Portable hard drives are ideal for backups. We tell you how to use these nifty devices to always keep a backup of your precious data

145 Understanding Manual Camera Configurations

Get to know about the manual settings on your camera to get the most out of it

June 2005

Test Centre

38 Let There Be Space!

External hard drives are the gadgets of choice for frequent backups. A comprehensive shootout, ranging from tiny pocket drives to the seriously capacious ones

34 New and Notable

Some of the best products to have entered the market—most notably the Apple 30-inch cinema HD display, the HCL Beanstalk Neo Media Centre PC, and the Treo 650

161 Tips And Tricks

Included here are several software we use on a daily basis: the Microsoft Office suite, Dreamweaver, Publisher, and FrontPage. We also tell you how to do home videos, and create your own RSS feed!

170 Q&A

Your questions answered. There's also the usual 'How To' section, this time on cataloguing your burnt CDs and DVDs using XBaseCatalog

175 Agent 001

It's the height of summer, and Agent 001's quest this month is to find the perfect cooling solution for his rig.

He also answers a few burning questions...

Escape

179

Dr Niklaus Wirth created the Pascal family of languages

180

So, did Al Gore actually invent the Internet like he claimed he did? Well, he's got a lifetime achievement award for his contributions, anyway