

World's slimmest smartphone

Huawei unveiled Ascend P6 - claims to be World's slimmest smartphone measuring 6.18mm in depth.
<http://dgit.in/19PV0t1>

Android custom ROMs

Rooted your device? Check out these best custom Android ROMs.
<http://dgit.in/17tUDj3>

LETTER OF THE MONTH

✉ I know you guys read every mail, and I don't want to take up your time, so I'm including two versions.

Tl;dr:

- That tape! My favourite pas-time is peeling the tape carefully off Digit magazines!
- Those DVDs! I love the way those DVDs are taped on to the magazine so I can almost break them!
- That Fast Track! I love how I almost tear off the entire cover page from Fast Track while removing the tape!
... Said no one ever.
- Digit is the best! For every one thing they do wrong, there are 10 things they do right.
- There's no other magazine like Digit!
- I like the articles in Digit! No other magazine does their research so well!
... Said a lot of people.

Normal version:

In case you've not read the intro and skipped to this part, read this first, I know I have your time and attention. I've been a reader of Digit since you guys started the magazine. But seriously guys, that tape. You've GOT to do something about it. I mean, I know you can't just go ahead and use glue. That would be too sticky. But I almost tore off the Fast Track to Embedded Systems. It now reads Fast Track to Systems. The 'Embedded' part tore off. I suggest putting the Fast Track inside the main magazine, and putting DVD sleeves at the end of the magazine, and making the whole plastic packaging smaller and more compact. I know that people have a tendency to show off their contents, and you've certainly earned that right. But you could continue to do that on a smaller plastic cover as well. And hey, it's good for the environment too!

I know you listen to people. Your website shows that. It's brilliant, as compared to the thinkdigit.com a year ago.

(I miss CTC, by the way. Specifically, the first edition, where you had to flip through the mag as well.)

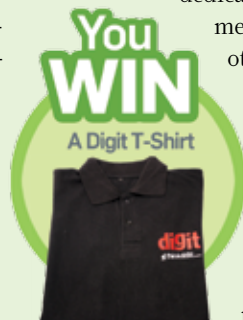

With a user base of readers who are dedicated to Digit, feel free to experiment. I can't really say about the others, but I certainly wouldn't mind. We're a population used to change. We're the youth. We'll BRING the change. (Okay, that sounds like a political party's agenda). I know you're trying to keep it as cheap as possible for us, but since we already pay 150 bucks, you could make it 160 and do something about the tape.

But seriously, 12 years is a long way to come, both for you as editors/publishers and us as readers. Congratulations, not just to you, but to all the other readers too. I'm glad we've had this little relationship together. And I'll continue to purchase your magazines, no matter what. I've never subscribed, since I've been a school student and my parents didn't approve of me reading Digit. They were concerned that I'd get too engrossed and miss out on studies. (Never happened though, and I got into a good college.) If there's any way I can help out, let me know. I know my stuff with websites. You can check out my portfolio at <http://xzhibit.com/portfolio.php>. Best of luck for the future!

Aditya Kumar

📧 Thanks for the mail. The tape is the bane of my existence for years now. In fact we spend extra to buy 3M tape which supposedly doesn't tear covers, and still we get complaints. We spend a premium on the thousands of rolls a month we procure. You can imagine the frustration levels I already go through! I am still searching for alternatives. I think my only option soon will be to approach a chem lab in IIT or some place and have one made from scratch :(

Robert

email a month ago and till now I haven't got any reply.

Shubham Goyal

📧 Did you write in to editor@thinkdigit.com?

I can't seem to find another email from you other than the time you participated in CTC IV. We're always improving the site, and you will begin to see changes soon, that I am sure you will like. The Test Centre decides on the rigs based on testing results, and takes price into consideration as well.

Robert

✉ This is my first letter to you and it's regarding the June issue. I was expecting an extra DVD. Not only was I disappointed in this aspect, but also with one of the DVDs packaged. A dual layer DVD with all trial versions of NFS? Wish at least one full version was included. However, you had other things on your mind. Thanks for the large collection of wallpapers.

My mixed reviews:

1. SKOAR! was good but could've been better. Thanks for the historic timeline of NFS and other games such as Duck Hunt, Mario etc. As long as I'm around PC Gaming won't die, as reported by Big Daddy, Jayesh Shinde. Please tell him that there are still fans of PC Gaming and my latest game was Black Ops 2.
2. The other supplement, DGT which mentioned the fighter planes, the Stryker and Lamborghini and their specs impressed me.

The positives:

1. I liked the main issue. It was good as usual.
2. When I saw the ad for a TV with Windows 8, I thought you guys were kidding.
3. I liked Tech @ Work related to gaming.
4. You guys did a good job by providing a white paper on Cloud Computing and the cover story on F1 to F12.
5. I was baffled to know that Ferrari and Kaspersky joined hands for Ferrari's IT security.

Vulimiri Shashank

📧 Thanks for your in-depth feedback. While I never said that PC gaming is dead (not by a long stretch, with passionate fans like you), we hope to know your reaction of this month's SKOAR! DVD.

Jayesh 📧