

worldview

OUR PICK OF THE BEST TECH ARTICLES FROM AROUND THE GLOBE

(MUST READS)

WE DON'T NEED NO STINKIN' ROBOTS

Popular Mechanics analysed Pacific Rim-style combat scenarios with the AH-64 Apache combat copter, the B-2 bomber and other machines at mankind's disposal. Find out what happens:

<http://dgit.in/gojilla>

10 LIFEHACKS FROM 100 YEARS AGO!

These incredible tips were printed on stiffening cards which tobacco companies packaged along with cigarette boxes in the early '90. Includes: how to fell a tree, how to make a fire extinguisher and more.

<http://dgit.in/lifehks>

THE SOCIAL-MEDIA BUBBLE IS QUIETLY DEFLATING

"The best minds of my generation are thinking about how to make people click ads," said a former Facebook engineer to Businessweek two years ago. Social-media companies drew only 2 per cent of the venture capital last quarter. Sign of things to come?

<http://dgit.in/socialbubl>

PORN ON TUMBLR?

Yahoo plans to simply relegate porn to a cordoned off internet ghetto. The new rules make it such that NSFW stuff won't show up on Tumblr tag pages, or might be excluded from search engines. More:

<http://dgit.in/tmblrp>

[NYT BITS Corner]

LIGHT READING: HOW THE KINDLE PAPERWHITE WORKS

The Kindle Paperwhite uses a slightly different system to illuminate its e-ink display. Instead of regular backlighting found on LCD screens, it uses a transparent light guide that directs light onto its surface. The New York Times' technology blog explains all. <http://dgit.in/nyteink>

Digital tools to curb snooping

Our lives in the digital space are prone to malicious attacks, surveillance and constant exposure to snooping eyes. Here the New York Times gives a handy list of apps that'll try to reduce your vulnerability.

<http://dgit.in/nytsnoop>

A console with quirks, for tinkerers

What hasn't been written about the Ouya, that we're directing your attention? Turns out David Pogue has a lot on his mind. Find out what as he dissects the $100 gaming console that managed to raise $8.5 from supporters just to invent it.

<http://dgit.in/nytouya>

Pros and Cons of a Surveillance Society

Pros? Could there really be pros to say a world where cameras record everything everywhere all the time? Apparently yes. Find out what happens at the metaphorical interaction of Prism, Google Glass, and the death of Trayvon Martin.

<http://dgit.in/nytbigbro>