

X-kit control panel

we have used Blogger only to find out that Tumblr was our true calling. But we simply can't abandon all the posts that we have on Blogger can we? And starting from scratch is not a pleasant option. Fret not, migrating tools to the rescue! One such tool is www.blogger-totumblr.com that helps you to migrate all your posts from your Blogger account to your Tumblr account. The best part is the simplicity of it all. All you have to do is enter the URLs of both the blogs and it transfers everything after authentication.

Go to www.bloggertotumblr.com and in the homepage type in your Blogger Feed URL/ Blog URL ([YourBlogName].blogspot.com), and your Tumblr blog URL ([YourBlogName].tumblr.com) in the respective text boxes and click 'Next'. You can also click on 'advanced options' and add a tag to all the imported posts, besides their original tags which will also be imported. The Import Status page will show you the titles of the posts that will be imported. Click 'Authorize with Tumblr' to authorise the app in Tumblr. Once the 'Authorized successfully' message appears on the, click the 'Publish on Tumblr' button and voila! all your posts from Blogger have been imported in to Tumblr. Note: the tool imports and stores the text in Tumblr but does not import and store the embedded images but instead links them to the original post in Blogger. So don't delete your original posts.

Mass edit posts

Considering the number of posts one can have on a Tumblr blog, it can get difficult to edit multiple posts for tags or to locate unwanted posts and delete them if you try doing them one by one. Instead you can use the Mass Editor provided by Tumblr to select multiple posts and edit their tags or simply delete them if you wish. If you have numerous posts then you can also choose to see of a particular month or year. On the posts tab, click on Mass Post Editor or simply type tumblr.com/mega-editor into the URL of the browser. The Mass Post editor shows all your posts sorted according to the month.

Become a keyboard ninja

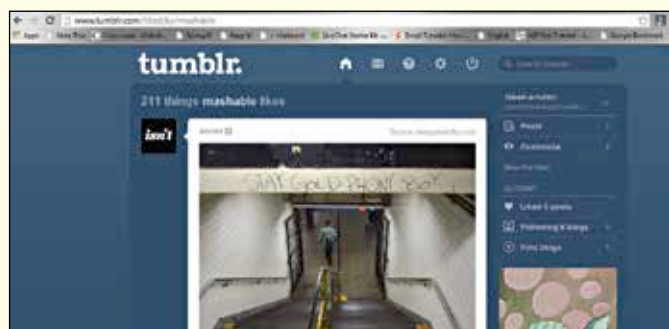

We geeks always try to find out the keyboard shortcuts of every college or office? Never fear, email is here. Tumblr has made it extremely easy to post to Tumblr via email. All you have to do is send an email to the custom email address allocated to you. You can even reset the address in case it leaks out. You will find this email ID in the blog settings under 'Post by Email' or simply go to this URL [tumblr.com/blog/\[Your Blog-Name\]/settings](http://tumblr.com/blog/[Your Blog-Name]/settings).

See what a blogger likes

Want see what a blogger likes? Perhaps you want to get some idea about what that cute looking friend in your list likes so that you can plan a

See what others like using this is simple URL hack software, online or offline, and Tumblr is no exception. Tumblr provides some quick keyboard shortcuts for common tasks like creating a new post, switching between the dashboard and blogs, reblogging, moving through posts, etc.

gift or maybe you are just plain curious about a blogger. Look no further as it is quite easy to see all the posts that a blogger likes.

Type the following URL in the browser [tumblr.com/liked/by/\[name of blog\]](http://tumblr.com/liked/by/[name of blog])

Action

- J,K - Move through posts
- L - Like a post
- N - See a post's notes
- Spacebar - Play a video post
- Shift+R - Quick reblog
- Z+C - Compose a new post
- Z+Tab - Quickly switch between dashboard and blogs

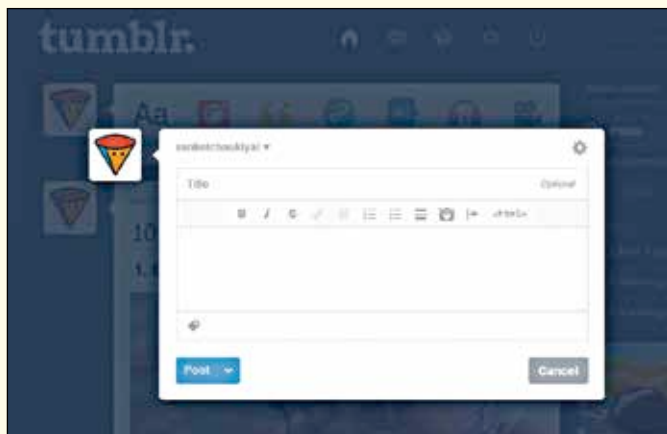

Post via email

Are social media sites blocked in your school,

Browse in Chronological order

Looking to read particular posts related to a tag? In Tumblr it is possible to browse specifically tagged posts in chronological order. Type the URL [\[blog name\].tumblr.com/tagged/\[tag name\]/chrono](http://[blog name].tumblr.com/tagged/[tag name]/chrono) in the browser and you will find the posts listed chronologically according to the tag you used in the URL. Happy tumbling. 🍷

Compose a new post