

Apple Star Wars

Jony Ive talks about the similarities between Apple and Star Wars. What did he have to say? Find out: <http://dgit.in/appleswars>

Magnetic Field Probe

Russians set off a space mission to probe the Earth's magnetic for answers to its slow dissipation: <http://dgit.in/magfield>

Logitech K760 wireless solar keyboard

For those who live life completely on the Mac and iOS side of tech, here's a gift you should consider for your Apple ecosystem-tied friends and family members. This is the keyboard that Apple product fans need and the last one they'll ever use, given its features. Say goodbye to batteries, it's completely powered off solar and indoor lights – that's right, as long as you aren't in a dark room for over three months, you will never need to charge this baby. And it works perfectly with Macs and iOS devices – iPhones, iPads, and iPods. It pairs without a hitch (with up to three devices simultaneously) and has all the necessary shortcuts for quick access. Yours for $80 (₹5,000).

Drool-worthy gadget gifts for this holiday season

Philips Hue

You may not have a burning need for an Internet-connected, colour-changing light bulb, but what's stopping you from gifting it to a geek buddy who'll completely dig it? The Philips Hue is an LED bulb that can change colours and can be controlled by any supported online app or smartphone. The most inexpensive kit comes with three bulbs and one control hub, all priced at $199 (₹12,500). It's easy to install, works like a charm, and offers up to 80 per cent savings on your electricity bill. Far from lighting up your room, the Philips Hue makes you smart just by turning them on.