

DGT

20

It's back, and it's inside Digit. It's still a work in progress, but send us feedback about it. We're going to try and integrate it seamlessly, so your feedback will be valuable

Snake is back!

The classic hit game, Snake Rewind, has been launched on multiple mobile platforms. More here : <http://digit.in/1QWtjL7>

✉ Hello to a Great Team,

I started reading Digit in the year 2009. Due to my Class 12 board exams and other things, I wasn't able to read any of your magazines after one of your Anniversary issues in which you published about 13 news that you'd like to hear in the future (The man who was saved from cancer by nanobots, but later died of a stroke was my favourite).

Now, after so long, I have plenty of time. So, it's my humble request that if it be your will, please include PDFs of your previous mags like you did earlier.

You once provided a Fast Track on E-Learning. If possible, please tell me how to get that issue. You see, all my previous mags got destroyed in a fire that destroyed my house (The house looked awesome while burning, although it scared the hell out of me as I live alone).

One more thing: In one of your previous issues, you provided some craft work. It was nice, but one request: Next time you provide something like that, provide it on a separate page if possible, because I don't like tearing off the front and back covers of my books.

Truly speaking, the previous issue was quite useful to me. I was searching for stuff that can be cheap and serve my purpose. And that idea of prompts-story writing that you gave in February issue was also good.

This is my first letter, but surely not the last. Unless I get kidnapped by aliens or my Chemistry teacher for not securing good marks in Chemistry.

Keep up the good work, guys!

– Salik Khan

📧 Nice to have you back with us again Salik. You're in for a treat - we've not only included previous issues of Digit but also everything else we've ever published. So you have a lot of catching up to do. Here's to hoping you remain abduction-free.

– Siddharth

✉ Hi Team Digit,

This is my second letter to you. I want to share my story with you all, but first here are my thoughts on the May issue.

1. I loved the cover story, and have bought many things mentioned in it.

Feedback for the May 2015 issue of Digit

2. The price of Dragon War Leviathan is incorrect. It's actually ₹900.
3. I didn't quite understand the dmystify booklet, although I actually loved the idea.
4. The unsolved problems in science was good. Please include more of these.

Now, coming to the story. I was introduced to Digit at the age of 8, at which time I only bought it for its games during train journeys. As I grew up, I realised the greatness of the content inside the magazine and the Fast Tracks, and soon became a computer geek.

Before reading Digit, I didn't even know that a computer can be assembled by a single person. It helped me build my first computer.

I completely love Digit and don't miss a single issue, so please keep fuelling readers like us.

– Anurag Chittawar

📧 Nice to hear from you again Anurag. Most of us started off the same way too.

– Siddharth

✉ Hi Team!

I'm a big fan of yours and even a regular reader of your mag since a couple of years.

It's my first time writing to you. I just want to say that I loved your article "Reboot Your Career" in the May issue. This helped me considerably improve my communication skills. That's it for now. Keep up the good work!

– Shagun Dubey

📧 Hey Shagun, nice to know. Here's wishing you a great career to come!

– Mithun

✉ Hey love.

No, love doesn't refer to you guys making this beautiful magazine. It refers to Ms. Digit.

This is my first letter just because I never really felt the need to write one before. I'll come back later to what made me.

Digit, you were love at first sight for me. I can very well recall that moment, but that's a story for another letter. I had a Samsung Corby then and a Nexus 5 now, and I can fully give credit for the transition to you as I wasn't much into tech earlier.

You've changed a lot over the years, but for the better of course and I'm really unable to find anything to criticise you about, but I also won't spoil you with much deserved appreciation (though your makers are doing a fantastic job).

Coming to what motivated me to write in to you, it's your new and amazingly awesome friend, dmystify. I know it might hurt you but she's smoking hot and my eyes were transfixed on her while reading because I never really thought that I'd ever be able to understand the theory of