

Xiaomi launches Water Purifier

Xiaomi has surprised many by launching a smart water purifier. Read more here: <http://dgit.in/xiaomiwpurify>

Uber expansion in India

Uber continues to focus on expanding its operations in Asia and has announced that it will expand into seven new cities in India <http://dgit.in/uberindexp>

P.S. We 'love' you too, keep reading, and writing in!

– Siddharth

✉ Please explain what a Microsoft phone is doing in the 'Top 10 Android Smartphones' list on your website? With such glaring errors, how would you expect users to trust the content you put on your website?

I know Digit has been around for as long as I can remember and I find this utterly disappointing.

– Pradeep Pai

4 Whoops! How did that get in there? Our apologies, and thanks for pointing out this glaring error. We've updated the list immediately, and hope the error hasn't broken your trust on our site.

– Soham

✉ Is there any way in which I could find out what were the contents of your previous DVDs? I've missed a few previous editions and was hoping that you could guide me.

– Harsh Khajuria

4 We've created a Google Doc especially for readers. It's a monthly break up of everything we've given in our DVDs for 2015. Here's the link: <http://dgit.in/DigitDVD2015> You can use [CTRL] + [F] to find exactly what you're looking for.

– Abhijit

✉ Hope you all have a refreshing time after a month of hard work. Also thank you for giving me a refreshing week. This time, my month began with a unit test (and yes, I was swamped with studies, studies and more studies,) and after my unit test, Digit came as a welcome relief and helped me to get out of the clutches of my monotonous study routine. Thanks again for your enjoyable magazine.

My last letter was about your plus points and flaws (nothing in the world is without flaws), so forget about your flaws and do your best to come up with the best. The reason I'm writing this letter is to let you know how important you are in my daily life. In just a few months

I'm recognised as the most renowned geek (in the field of tech) in my class (and this is because of you, Digit). Last year, I knew nothing about tech but after you came into my life and I started reading your mag I became a geek. The truth is that you're the most inspiring thing (after my parents) that I've come across. In one phrase, you've changed my life.

You've inspired me in many ways. Now see, when I read Sid and Jayesh and Robert's humorous (or serious) yet knowledgeable columns, it inspires me to write well. When I see the magazine and realise the your hard work behind it, it inspires me to work hard. When I see the cool pics of all the latest gadgets in your mag, it inspires me to save money to buy one. When I see your team's photo, it inspires me to be handsome (You all are really handsome). Now, if I start writing everything about you that inspires me, I really will end up writing Ramayana 2.0! So you can understand why you guys are my sole tech guide, teacher and best friend all put together!

Do you know, Team Digit, many people become tech geeks because of you, many consult you or your mag before buying products and many show off their knowledge on tech among their friends like me because of you. You're heroes to millions of people like me. I'm speaking the truth, Team Digit. If I had to choose between you and Iron Man, I would choose you.

Now coming to your latest magazine (July 2015 edition). It's awesome. I can't understand how you could gather and print so much of information in just 2-3 mags. Please, let me know how you managed to do that. If I start writing about my feelings towards you, I'm sure I'll definitely end up writing Mahabharata 2.0 (enlarged edition)!

Last query to you: In reply to my previous letter, you asked if I could write for you as your gaming staff. I'm definitely in. Nobody leaves golden opportunities like these, so I won't either. If I could be of help in any way to you, then I'm there with you!

Long live Team Digit! Keep digitising millions of minds in India and abroad!

Shovan Bairi

4 You bet nothing comes without flaws, and we're a constant reminder of that. However, it's important that we improve, and improve we will, thanks to the help of readers such as yourself who take the time to sit and write us a letter.

As for handsome, well, it's really true that beauty lies in the eyes of the beholder... May we suggest you have your eyesight tested? Don't drive any heavy machinery until you do. Really! Yes, we do fancy ourselves as writers, but in the looks department, perhaps Sid is cute (he's even had a stalker or three!), the rest of us are just glad we can string words together.

As for Iron Man, no dude, no. Iron man always. He's the king of cool... the geek to rule all geeks. We are cooler than Aquaman though. Then again, everyone is!

Now stop wasting time writing us letters and get started on those SKOAR! articles. Chop, chop.

– Robert

✉ Your take on String Theory was exceptionally good! I liked it very much. Though I need to read it several times to fully grasp the concept (obviously), I found it exciting and endearing. Kudos to you guys for taking such a difficult topic and handling it so well. I guess many guys with doctorates helped you to write it. Thanks a lot for your efforts and keep dmystifyng!

– Neeraj Lagwankar

4 Thanks for the feedback, Neeraj. However we have to apologise to you and all other readers for some major formatting errors that crept in. In every place where numbers were supposed to go as a superscript, due to lack of proofing, these went as normal numbers. We'll correct all those errors and put up the corrected PDF for download to the public. My sincere apologies for this oversight. And no, there are no people with doctorates to be blamed for this, just us!

– Robert

✉ I received your July issue that I was eagerly waiting for thinking that it would contain some E3 footage of all major studios as covered every year by you. But,