

LETTER OF THE MONTH

Hi Team Digit,

First of all Happy New Year to everyone there. Let me start off with a story, I got my first computer around 2003 and ever since then I have been a geek. For as long as I could remember I have always been fascinated by technology. On a fateful day in around 2008, I asked my dad if I could get a tech magazine, if such a thing even existed in India around that time. That night he brought home my first Digit Magazine along with it a Skoar magazine as well, as he knew I loved gaming (still do) and I was completely blown away by the content, as it covered everything I could ever want and with it a fast-track supplement. Soon after we subscribed to Digit for a few years.

Later on life happened with school, college etc and I never got time to sit down and read it. But I still had that passion for technology that Digit imprinted on me back from my childhood days. So recently as I was cleaning my house and sorting stuff from the past 20 or so years, I stumbled upon a box and when I opened it, and voila !! It was my old box full of Digits and fast-tracks and immediately I got sent back 15 years. I read a few of them and it made me realize how far we have come in terms of technology (from the legendary Nokia N95 to the new Samsung Z Fold and games looking ever more realistic) and more importantly how much I missed Digit.

In this day and age of everything being online, let it be reviews, shopping, news people rarely buy magazines anymore. As much as I like online sites, it can never match the good feel of holding a magazine in your hand and reading it. I feel the passion of journalists and writers behind magazines like Digit is what kids and adults are missing nowadays. As the days of paperprints are slowly coming to an end, I do feel very sad that people want fast paced news that are short and crisp may it be authentic or fake. So realising what I missed all these years and what made me happy back then, the next day I ordered 3 copies of previous months of Digit and I must say, you guys still have it. Everything is the same just as I remembered it and I loved flipping through the pages. So I decided to order digit from time to time from now onwards and tell kids if they ever want to get into techy stuff, just grab a copy of Digit.

Again thank you so much for the effort, that team Digit is putting into every issue which keeps us readers coming back for more and keeps the passion for tech journalism alive in our community. Hope you have a wonderful year ahead !!

Thanking you,

Rahul Suresh, A Passionate Geek

Hey Rahul,

Thank you for the kind words and definitely for taking the time out to put your thoughts down. Since you appreciate the print format, we're definitely going to put the same in print.

I've personally been working here for more than a decade, and I see how my colleagues have been working day and night to bring out the in-depth content that we have been known for all these years. I know that the content has changed over the years to keep up with the times but it's great to know that folks still appreciate the content that we continue to put out. We've been experimenting with newer content formats and newer platforms.

We will strive to continue the legacy and continually improve the content.

We are very much interested in your feedback regarding the new redesign that we are coming out starting this month. Please do let us know your thoughts and we'll try our bestest to incorporate the same.

Just as a token of appreciation, we're going to extend your subscription by a few months. Please reach out to help@digit.in with your subscription details and they will hook you up.
