

SCGC Girl Gamers Corner

Thanks to SKOAR! College Gaming Club, here are some young girl gamers from different parts of India describing their gaming experiences and highlights.

Kankana Bhowmick

21, Kolkata, West Bengal

My Dad's an OG gamer, and he still plays games from his school years. He started with cassette games (Super Mario, Galaxian and Pac-Man in arcades) to Call of Duty, Age of Empires in my childhood. My first exposure to gaming was sitting and watching my Dad play AoE.

Shifa Afreen Siddiqui

20, Kolkata, West Bengal

Gaming is a great stress-buster. It helps me challenge my alternate self. Gaming has taught me how to be effective in teams. I wasn't a team player before but gaming has changed that.

Joyee Hriday

19, Guwahati, Assam

I feel like female characters are made according to the male gaze, they are over sexualized you know curvy and all that. Another thing I've noticed is that male characters are mostly aggressive while female characters are given healing powers and stuff.

Ananya Gupta

18, New Delhi

My parents don't have a problem with me playing video games as I play in my free time and don't skip studying. I don't believe I am addicted to gaming so I can balance it pretty well.