

Activision takes charge of investigating CoD

It's been a tough few weeks for the folks over at Activision as the launch of Season 3 of Call of Duty: Warzone 2 was not the hit they were expecting it to be. Fans have reported a number of issues with the game such as stuttering, inability to find an actual game and a ton of other server issues. <https://dgit.in/WarZoneIn>

New gaming rules introduced in India

The Ministry of Electronics and IT (MeitY) has announced new online gaming rules to protect gamers. This primarily means wagering which won't be permissible in games anymore. The centre has decided on five such amendments after comprehensive consultations. <https://dgit.in/NewRoolz>

Another PlayStation Portable?

Sony is reportedly developing a PlayStation handheld console, but it won't be a standalone console like the PlayStation Vita. The portable gaming device is apparently being designed to work with the Remote Play feature of the PlayStation console. <https://dgit.in/NewPsP>

CoD Warzone 2.0 update is coming soon - Keep an eye out for these features

Warzone 2.0 Season 3 of Call of Duty will see a few changes and features to the base game. In an official statement on the Call of Duty blog, the company addressed pacing issues such as time-to-kill, weapon damage, armour values, movement mechanics, defensive tools, outplay opportunities and more. With these new changes, we could see a slight shift in gameplay and how players can approach each encounter. So, without any further ado, let's see what the new Season 3 update brings. <https://dgit.in/WarzoneFeatures>

Nintendo destroys a hacker's life

It's clear that Nintendo ain't playing around. The Japanese video game giant recently dropped the sledgehammer on a hacker named Gary Bowser. The company decided to make an example of the hacker by suing him. Gary was then thrown in prison for three years. He was part of a team that would manufacture chips that allowed pirated games to be played on the 3DS and even the Switch. Gary was then released from prison earlier this year and has to now pay Nintendo $10 million in damages. A Canadian citizen, Bowser was incarcerated at the Northwest Detention Centre in Washington. <https://dgit.in/NintendoAtLaw>

Sony PS5 shatters console sales records

It's been a slow start for the PS5, but if the sales figures for the last quarter are any indication, the console could be well on its way to being one of the best-selling of all time. In just three short months, the PS5 has allegedly outsold even the PS4 for that period of time. It has basically destroyed the PS4's record at the same time. A consolidated financial result report by Sony suggests that the PS5 has sold about 6.3 million units in just the first quarter of 2023. That's about 2 million consoles sold in a month. If these numbers are true then the PS5 is well on its way to becoming one of the best-selling consoles of all time, up there with the Nintendo Switch, Wii and PS2. There have been rumours of a PS5 Pro and the like, but with how the PS5 is going right now, it would not be a smart idea to introduce an upgrade to a console that is already quite powerful. <https://dgit.in/PS5Record>
