

Smartwatches for women

Getting those miles in!

G S Vasan | vasan@digit.in

Although most smartwatches are unisex that both men and women can wear, there are some that are designed to attract the feminine gamut of users. These smartwatches would be more fashion-forward than rugged. Part of being fashionable means more colour options for the chassis and the bands. And since women, in general, tend to have slimmer wrist circumferences, women-centric wristwear is usually lightweight and slender. Say, something like the Garmin Lily falls in the kind we are talking about. Now, besides the style aspect of it, these days, most wrist wearables come with the menstrual cycle and fertility tracking functionality for women. So, here are some of the best smartwatches for women available in India.

Apple Watch Series 8

Apple Watch Series 8's new set of features includes two skin temperature sensors which sample your average body temperature and compare it with a baseline. This nightly temperature log may not be absolute but it lets women know a change in temps probably because of ovulation.

Cycle tracking is one of the many key features of the Apple Watch Series 8. You also get a sapphire crystal glass screen, IP6X dust resistance, a WR50 water resistance, car crash detection, heart rate monitoring, SpO2 tracking, ECG, sleep tracking, fall detection, and a new Low Power Mode.

You can pick it up in a GPS+ cellular model as well.

Samsung Galaxy Watch 5

If you want something closely powerful as the Apple Watch but from the Android side, you have the Samsung Galaxy Watch 5. If you prefer a round dial, that could also be a reason to go for this one. The watch also comes with an AMOLED display, a sapphire crystal glass screen, a rotating bezel, 5ATM water resistance, sleep tracking (with snore detection), heart rate monitoring, body fat percentage, step counter, SpO2 tracker, stress level logger, over 90 sports modes, 13-per cent improved battery life over its predecessor, several gorgeous watch faces, and Armor Aluminium build.

Garmin Lily

If you want more style, you can opt for Garmin Lily. It is a beautiful watch with menstrual cycle tracking and pregnancy tracking for women users. You get to know even pregnancy-related symptoms and baby movements from this watch. Garmin also gives exercise and nutrition tips. It also features a body battery level indicator, pulse OX meter, stress level indicator, 24x7 heart rate tracking, sleep monitoring, body battery monitor, blood glucose levels and multiple sports modes tracking. You also get mobile-phone GPS, real-time notifications from your phone, and a claim of 5-day battery life.

Skagen Falster 6

Skagen, a Fossil sub-brand offers the Fossil Gen 6 with Danish-inspired design. So, you may pick this for its different look. It packs Wear OS 3 software with all the apps galore and UI polish. There is no Google Assistant though. Rather you get Amazon's Alexa. The display is AMOLED in nature, and inside, you also have a SpO2 monitor, a heart rate tracker, GPS, 8GB of music storage, 3ATM water resistance, etc. You can also look for Fossil Gen 6 Wellness Edition since it is the same watch internally. Only the design changes and the price difference is what you need to note.
