Q With the changing patterns in buying behavior of Indian consumers, what change, in terms of demand, has ReFit Global seen in recent years?

A In recent years, ReFit Global has observed a significant change in demand, driven by shifting buying behaviour among Indian consumers. This change has been particularly noticeable during and after the COVID-19 pandemic. There has been a remarkable surge in smartphone usage and purchases, prompting brands to establish a robust online presence to cater to the evolving consumer preferences.

One notable change in demand has been observed in the price range preferred by consumers. Over the past few years, smartphones priced between INR 8,000 - 12,000 have experienced a surge in popularity. In contrast, three years ago, many brands were launching phones in the range of INR 7,000 to 12,000. For the past 3 years, prominent brands such as Samsung, Xiaomi, Oppo and Vivo have also started launching phones in range of INR 18,000 plus.

The refurbished market has witnessed an increase in demand due to these changing consumer preferences. Users now have the opportunity
