Needless to say, the 15-inch Apple MacBook Air M2 is a highly anticipated device since the beginning of this year. And now Apple has finally delivered what the masses have been asking for—a 15-inch MacBook Air at an affordable price. Before the 15-inch MacBook Air if you wanted to buy a big-screen MacBook you only had one option - a 16-inch MacBook Pro which starts from Rs. 2 lakh 22 thousand! Because in the affordable range, below Rs. 1.5 lakh, you could either get a 13-inch Macbook Air or a 13-inch Macbook Pro!

So now you know how important of a slot this 15-inch M2 Macbook Air actually fills! A large-screen MacBook priced for the masses. And it's a very intelligent move because Mac sales have been declining recently. But hey, Apple knows when it's time to inject some demand into the market. So, let's see if the MacBook Air M2 is the answer we've been waiting for.

An All-Grown-Up Design

When it comes to design, the MacBook Air M2 sticks to Apple's signature sleek and lightweight aesthetic. But the real star of the show is the 15.3-inch display. It's spacious, it's immersive, and it's everything you'd want from a larger MacBook Air. Plus, with a gross weight of just 1.51kg and a thickness of just 11.5mm, it is still very portable to carry around basically everywhere. In terms of I/O, it comes with two Thunderbolt / USB 4 ports, a MagSafe charging slot, and a 3.5 mm audio jack. There is no USB A so I'd suggest getting one of these in case you plan to purchase this thing.

The MacBook Air 15-inch M2 boasts a standout feature that sets it apart from the crowd—its large 15.3-inch Liquid Retina display. With a native resolution of 2,880 x 1,864, this display is perfect for whether you're watching videos, browsing the web, or editing photos, the MacBook Air 15's display offers an immersive experience. In terms of colour saturation though, it is not as good as some of the OLED displays that we've started seeing on Windows laptops. But it still is objectively very good and does get very bright for both indoor and outdoor environments. And let's not forget about that because there is more space inside the Macbook, it also has more speakers. Now, Apple speakers are generally very good but the 15-inch MacBook Air takes it to another level, surpassing any other laptop in its class. It's like having a mini sound system right at your fingertips.

Also just like the 13-inch model, the speakers are now placed on the inside and they fire up towards the screen which is reflected back to you! One clear advantage I see of having no open speaker grille is that they will stay dust free. And combined with the totally fanless design of the laptop, the 15-inch Macbook Air M2 becomes a great choice, especially in India where there's a lot of dust always flying around. One common complaint with smaller laptops is the lack of sufficient palm rest area, but that's not an issue here. The 15-inch M2 Macbook Air has enough space to rest your palms. It's a small detail but it makes a big difference in overall ergonomics. The trackpad is also big, even bigger than the 14-inch version and it works quite literally flawlessly. I mean it's even on all sides, and offers precise clicks doesn't matter where you press. And the 15-inch MacBook Air M2 also features a keyboard that's consistent across the line. Apple has come a long way from the days of its infamous ter-
