

When Samsung, Delicacies, and the Flu Collide!

In the Mumbai office, the atmosphere crackled with energy and tension as the magazine closing neared. Sleepless nights became the norm, and the aroma of freshly brewed coffee wafted through the air as weary yet determined employees downed cup after cup to stay awake.

Caffeine became their loyal companion, powering them through the long hours and intense brainstorming sessions. As the sun dipped below the horizon, the office transformed into a haven for gamers during their much-needed breaks. Nerf gun battles and mini table-tennis tournaments filled the office spaces, providing much-needed comic relief amid the chaos. Well, we finally did close on “time”.

Dhriti's Korean adventure

Meanwhile, amidst the hustle and bustle of the office, Dhriti embarked on an exhilarating adventure to South Korea. Her excitement knew no bounds as she jetted off to attend the prestigious Samsung Galaxy Unpacked event. With her trusty camera in hand, she eagerly captured every moment of the grand unveiling of Samsung's latest tech marvels.

The Z Fold 5 and Z Flip 5 wowed the audience with their cutting-edge features and sleek designs. Dhriti found herself immersed in a world of technological wonders, surrounded by like-minded enthusiasts. She couldn't help but marvel at the innovation that had become synonymous with the Samsung brand.

But it wasn't all just business and gadgets for Dhriti; she had a mission of her own. Before her departure, she had made a heartfelt promise to her colleagues back in Mumbai. She had vowed to bring back culinary treats from South Korea, ensuring that everyone got a taste of the country's delightful cuisine.

Upon her return, the entire office eagerly gathered around her desk, eager to sample the much-anticipated treats.

Satvik's Delhi de tour

Not one to be outdone in the culinary adventure department, Satvik found himself in Delhi for a whirlwind of official engagements. While his schedule was packed to the brim, the lure of Delhi's famed street food beckoned irresistibly.

Amidst all the work commitments, Satvik hatched a plan. He would venture into the bustling streets of Delhi during a brief break and savour his favourite local delicacies. The mere thought of tangy Golgappas and aromatic Chole Bhature made his taste buds dance with anticipation.

When the opportune moment arrived, Satvik slipped away from the event venue like a culinary ninja, determined to make the most of his limited time. He meandered through the narrow alleys, guided by the mouthwatering aroma of street vendors.

With each bite, Satvik's eyes lit up with delight, and he couldn't help but exclaim, “This is the best Golgappa I've ever had!” His colleagues back in Mumbai received real-time updates as he indulged in an eating spree that could rival any food blogger's dream itinerary.

As he returned to the event venue, Satvik couldn't help but chuckle at the adventurous detour he had just undertaken. His colleagues in the Mumbai office playfully teased him, joking that he should consider a side gig as a food critic. Satvik's foodie escapade became a cherished office tale, earning him the

Dhriti Datta

When you can't visit all 29 food stalls in Seoul