This festive season, gift yourself something that will enhance your life!

Smartwatches and wearables aren't just cool tech accessories, they are also quite useful in terms of health tracking features and keeping a check on your vitals. Here are a few things you need to know in order to pick the best wearable this festive season!

1 Compatibility

First thing to check is if your smartwatch will work in-sync with other devices that you own. If you use an Android phone, any smartwatch except the Apple Watch will work, but if you own an iPhone, your best bet is an Apple Watch.

2 Display

As important as it is in every other gadget, in smartwatches also, the display matters a lot. Most affordable smartwatches offer an IPS LCD or TFT display, which is considered substandard as compared to AMOLED displays. Depending on your budget, you can look for an AMOLED or IPS LCD display.

3 Battery Life

Battery life is crucial. It is very important to pick a smartwatch with a long battery backup, because having to charge your watch every few hours isn't exactly convenient. Look for something with at least a 300mAh battery for a decent backup.

4 Fitness and Health Tracking

More than convenience, smartwatches are also used for health and fitness, so it is important to check what health and fitness features the watch offers as against what your purpose is. Usually, smartwatches come with heart rate, sleep patterns, steps, and workout tracking.

5 Notifications and Connectivity

A smartwatch should also help you reduce screen time, and that can only happen if you can take calls and check notifications on the watch. If you want calling, check for Bluetooth calling or LTE capabilities on a smartwatch.

6 Water Resistance

We don't always remember to remove our watch when washing hands, and we use smartwatches for a lot of workouts. Hence, it is important to make sure that there is some water resistance (IP68 or 5ATM) before buying a smartwatch.

7 Customization Options

Every Apple Watch is the same, but every user isn't. Look for something with more watch faces, strap options, and even accessories if you want your smartwatch to resonate with your personality! d
