was one mystery that remained unsolved - the case of the perpetually spinning chair. Jayesh's cabin was empty during office hours, with only his spinning chair giving the impression that someone had just left. His whereabouts remained a mystery, adding a touch of intrigue to the everyday office saga. The spinning chair became a symbol of the enigma that was Jayesh. Was he in a secret meeting? Was he working from home? Or was he just taking a long lunch break? The mystery added a dash of suspense to the otherwise routine office life. The office was abuzz with theories and speculations, but the mystery remained unsolved. The spinning chair continued to spin, and Jayesh continued to be a mystery.

Prakrit's Foldable Phone Fiasco

In the midst of all this, Prakrit had a new fascination - his foldable phone. The cutting-edge technology intrigued him, and he was often seen fiddling with it, exploring its features. However, the phone was not just a source of fascination for Prakrit; it was also the cause of some truly absurd moments.

One day, while engrossed in a game, Prakrit's foldable phone slipped from his hand. It unfolded mid-air and landed perfectly on the keyboard, causing his game character to charge headfirst into an enemy base. The office erupted in laughter as Prakrit's character met an untimely end, all thanks to his foldable phone.

On another occasion, Prakrit was demonstrating the phone's folding mechanism to his colleagues when it folded a little too enthusiastically, pinching his finger in the process. The incident, though painful for Prakrit, was highly amusing for his colleagues.

Despite these absurd moments, Prakrit remained fascinated by his foldable phone.
