Google reveals Pixel 9 Pro Fold ahead of August 13 launch

Google has just revealed its upcoming Pixel 9 Pro Fold, and it's set to launch on August 13th.

According to Google, the Pixel 9 Pro Fold is "a foldable phone built for the Gemini era." Now, let's talk about the design. The back of the phone will feature a squarish camera module positioned at the top left corner. The body appears to be made of a matte finish material. Also, there will be a punch-hole design for the front-facing camera. The Pixel 9 Pro Fold is confirmed to come in two colour options: White and Black. The device is expected to feature an upgraded camera system, and if it's anything like the previous Pixel models, we can expect some stunning photo quality. Whether you're capturing your everyday moments or snapping pictures on a special occasion, the Pixel 9 Pro Fold is likely to impress.

Samsung Galaxy M35 5G hits the shelves

Samsung was just done with the release of its foldable smartphones and now it has launched another smartphone in the country. Unlike the Samsung Galaxy Z foldable, this is a budget-friendly smartphone. We are talking about the Samsung Galaxy M35 5G, which succeeds the Galaxy M34 5G. The Galaxy M34 5G was a great budget smartphone for daily use, according to our review, and the same is expected from the Galaxy M35 5G. <https://bit.ly/M355GP>

Oppo Reno 12 series with Dimensity 7300-Energy SoC launched

Oppo has launched its latest Oppo Reno 12 series. This includes the vanilla Oppo Reno 12 5G and the Oppo Reno 12 Pro 5G. Oppo has promised a variety of AI features along with a strong camera. The Oppo Reno 12 5G series succeeds the Oppo Reno 11 5G series. The design is what stands out. You get a glossy, shiny finish on both smartphones with a triple camera setup on the rear.
