OpenAI unveils cost-efficient GPT-4o mini model

OpenAI has announced its most cost-efficient small AI model called GPT-4o mini. The company expects that the GPT-4o mini will expand the range of applications built with AI by making intelligence much more affordable. GPT-4o mini is more than 60% cheaper than GPT-3.5 Turbo.

According to OpenAI, the GPT-4o mini model scores 82% on MMLU and currently outperforms GPT-4 on chat preferences in LMSYS leaderboard. GPT-4o mini supports text and vision in the API, with support for text, image, video and audio inputs and outputs coming in the future. This small model has a context window of 128K tokens, supports up to 16K output tokens per request, and has knowledge up to October 2023. With the improved tokenizer shared with GPT-4o, handling non-English text is now even more cost effective, as per the company."

Apple and others might have secretly used YouTube content to train AI

According to the report, subtitles extracted from 173,536 YouTube videos, originating from over 48,000 channels, were utilised by prominent Silicon Valley companies such as Anthropic, Nvidia, Apple, and Salesforce. The dataset, known as YouTube Subtitles, includes video transcripts from educational and online learning channels such as Khan Academy, MIT and Harvard, alongside content from major media outlets such as The Wall Street Journal, NPR, and the BBC. <https://bit.ly/DoYouYouTube>

Smartphone sales get GenAI push

The global smartphone market saw a significant increase in the second quarter of 2024. According to Counterpoint Research's Smartphone 360 Monthly Tracker, sell-through volumes rose by 6%. This growth trend, now spanning three consecutive quarters, reflects improving consumer sentiment and macroeconomic factors. Key regions driving this surge include Europe and Latin America, both experiencing robust double-digit growth rates year-over-year. In China, Huawei's resurgence and an early start to the 618 shopping festival contributed to a gradual recovery in the market. Emerging markets, outpaced more mature markets in terms of growth. <https://bit.ly/GenAIAIAI>
