

INTERNET OF THINGS

An army of interconnected devices is headed our way and will soon be controlling our world.

The concept inspiring this interconnectivity is called the “Internet of Things” and is a work in progress by many developers of technology across the world. These are the folks who will help us make the world a better place to live in by building smart cities with smart buildings, smart street lighting systems and many such innovations.