

Internet Explorer, Opera 11, Opera Mobile, Firefox Mobile, BlackBerry, Windows Phone, Safari Mobile and Android 2.3 & above.

It's available for Windows and Mac OS X. There's an initial free trial for seven days; if the trial meets your expectations, you can buy the license for $49 (approx. Rs.3022). Download it from vanamco.com/ghostlab

BrowserStack

BrowserStack is among the best browser emulators available. It's a web-based service that offers online browser testing for more than 300 different browsers – including iOS, Android and Opera Mobile. It also provides a secure set-up with its ability to test local and internal servers. Since it's a web-based service, no downloading and installation is required. It comes bundled with developer tools such as Firebug Lite, Microsoft Script Debugger and many more for quick testing and debugging.

You can try BrowserStack (browserstack.com) for free, but this version is limited in functionality. To get the full advantage of the system you'll have to pay $39 (approx. Rs.2,408) per month for two users and $399 (Rs.24,611) per month for 25 users.

Sauce Labs

Sauce Labs is another web-based service that lets you test your websites online. The cloud service offers more than 260 different browser platforms and devices for testing and a comprehensive test infrastructure including Selenium and JavaScript. Some of its debugging features include live breakpoints so that you can jump within the code to analyse the problem manually.

What sets Sauce Labs apart from other emulators is its detailed test report feature. After completing the test, you'll receive a full report with the meta data and log files. You can then compare screenshots to diagnose errors and verify layouts, or even watch a screencast of the whole test.