

Sauce Labs (saucelabs.com) offers a 14-day free trial initially. Once the trial period is over and if you want to continue, you'll have to shell out $12 (approx. Rs.741) per month for one user and $149 (approx. Rs.9,194) per month for 10 users and so on.

Google Chrome Emulator Mode

If you're using Google Chrome, look no further than your browser for an emulator. Google integrated the emulator into Chrome last year with the release of Chrome 32. Limited only to mobile devices, it supports a glut of devices including iPhone, iPad, Nexus, Lumia, Galaxy and a line-up of many more phones.

To enable the emulator, first navigate to the web page that you want to test and go to 'Developer Tools' by navigating to Menu > More tools > Developer Tools. Click on the small mobile phone icon located at the top of the Developer side panel and choose the device, screen, user agent and sensors.

Emulator mode in Google Chrome offers a glut of handy features.

Browsershots

If you're looking for a free emulator, Browsershots (browsershots.org) will do the job for you. It's a convenient way of testing your website's browser compatibility. Being a free tool, it works very differently compared to the other tools mentioned. It doesn't provide real-time testing of your web page; instead you're given screenshots of your web page's appearance in
