

BABY STEPS TO BABY TECH

Apps, websites, user interfaces and everything else you need to know when preparing your child for modern technology.

There are no easy moments when raising a child. Very few things beyond feeding, clothing and sheltering children is ever obvious. And for modern day parents who are overwhelmed with the rapidly changing nature of their children's world technology can be a frightening monster. Major concerns such as "how much is too much?" and "what are my kids doing online?" can drive a parent to many a sleepless nights. Well, breathe easy - we've got you covered. Familiarising

Kids to Technology

All parents know that kids are highly attuned to new skills and love exploring. For most early life skills, children require the assistance and guidance of adults; from learning to use the bathroom facilities to tying their own shoes. Similarly, the way they learn to use technology also requires guidance and assistance from parents. Depending on the age of the child it becomes necessary to identify the different exposures they will encounter.