5.Nabi Tablet

Nabi defines the ‘Nabi Tablet’ as not just a tablet, but “a springboard for greatness.” The tablet, while maintaining all the functions of a full Android tablet, aims to educate children in a fun way. The company has exclusive versions of the tablets according to age group – there’s the Nabi Jr for kindergarten children, Nabi 2/2S for children aged 3-5 and so on. The core component of the Nabi tablets is the software. Nabi has a suite of software for each age group known as the ‘Wings Learning System’. It contains software in all educational leagues, with special emphasis on maths, vocabulary and writing skills. The software covers school grades from kindergarten to Class 6. It also has a rewards system to encourage better performance among kids called ‘Nabi coins’, which kids can use to purchase apps and other content.

Each tablet comes with a protective red bumper for durability and scratch-proof glass. All tablets are fitted with high-end Nvidia Tegra processors for gaming purposes.

The other main feature of the Nabi tablets is the Nabi Security Administration (NSA). It’s a parental control system, where parents can set time control and app restrictions. The tablet gives insights into how it’s being
