

details. With the familiarity of assembler coding and the layout of the board's electronics, you can literally command it to execute any command which can be written. This can range from remote controlling a drone to creating a home entertainment system. The only limit is your willingness to learn, develop and innovate coding for the operating system required to bring your dreams to life. 🍌