

THE UX DESIGN PROCESS

A comprehensive walkthrough of designing UX

You can take the horse to the water but you can't make it drink. With UX design processes, you can certainly increase the chances! Now that you see the big picture of UX Design, it is time to delve into the actual process. What are the steps of the UX Design process and why are they necessary? What does a UX Designer actually do, and why do they do it?

Understanding Goals

As a UX Designer you will encounter two main types of goals User goals and Business goals.

Business Goals

Everybody does things for a reason, and that includes organizations and companies. Businesses set goals for measuring success, and keeping everyone on the same page. The reason they want to develop the website, application or product is to achieve those goals. Business goals can be a variety of things - Money (the most common), Propaganda or Brand Enhancement, or acquiring a new User Base. The specific type of business goal will greatly affect your strategy on how to make use of users achieving their goals.
