

Colours and Typograpgy

the caller to his desired path in a faster way with a conversational tone. These paths, voice modulations and reactions would need to be defined by UX designers. UX would teach the IVR to recognise signs of frustration and identify opportunities for empathy

8. Experience all around

Experience will no longer be limited to mobile and desktop screens. With IoT (Internet of Things) working its way into every nook and cranny of our lives, experience will be everywhere – in our clothes (yes, even in our undergarments), glasses, watches, etc.

9. Colours and Typography

Serif or Sans Serif will no longer be a debate. They'll both rule layouts. Bold, easy-to-understand and shorter versions of communication will be the future. Material Design palette defining brighter colours will be here to stay. Brighter, bolder colours signifying independence of thoughts, actions and deeds will be the future.