

how it affects their routine. For example, the fact that Google and Facebook make use of your saved preferences to deliver specific ads targeted to your specific demographic is surprisingly unknown to the average Internet user. If consumers are prepared to enjoy such a personalized service at the cost of their personal data, time will tell. 