

Kevin Warwick with his BrainGate implant in action for developing his bone conduction earphones and the colour-to-frequency camera extension antenna. What this antenna does is convert the colour of an article to its frequency and transfer it to the headphone. Then, the headphone converts the light frequency to sound frequency and conducts it to his inner ear via bone conduction. His colleague, Moon Ribas, another well known cyborg activist, wears a seismic sensor attached to her arm,