

15. VRideo

VRideo is a web based content hosting service for virtual reality and 360 degree video. Before you roll your eyes and say, “What’s so hot about that?” let it be known that the service is hardware agnostic. They’re also in the works of a browser based solution that would cater to desktop HMDs and and also a Gear VR app. In other words, the LA based company is taking this thing REAL serious so that we can all have a lotta fun!

Right now in India- at least in the urban centers it’s hard not to be observant of the changes that are being made-in terms of technology and socially by the startups. Virtual Reality startups are a heightened version of that reality- no pun intended; the reality of changing the way we look at things and also expanding our horizons by adding ever new experiences to our catalogue of feelings-experiences which we have only dreamed or fantasized of before. And as with the best of technology, many of its offerings sound so cool it’s positively unreal!
