

CREATING CONTAGIOUS SOCIAL CONTENT

To be a successful social media manager, it's important to understand how to make good content great on social platforms...

As digital marketers knock their heads on walls lamenting the lack of enough 'contagious' content, here's the lowdown on how to create such content, and perhaps make the marketers happy! "Oh, god, it's shareable!" Digital marketers across the globe seems to hear this happy exclamation inside their ear every time they come up with a content that's deployed across social media websites. The exclamation, as they hear it is made by their potential audience, who soon after making the aforementioned exclamation would proceed to share the content to all their friends who will in turn forward it to all of their friends and the tale spread like wildfire-making the digital marketer happier than a dog with a bone.

Jokes aside, the wish for a piece of content to go viral is well-justified, especially since social media managers etc. are doing the work which puts