

Use a tool like Hootsuite to commandeer your business' social strategy effectively videos you upload. Facebook posts are also a good place to market offers and giveaways and provide the best way to connect with the consumer. Ensure that the posts are as succinct and as minimalistic as possible.

There are a couple of things amateurs like us can do to boost the reach of our posts. Firstly, it is important to time the posts to ensure maximum outreach. In the case of Scyther, a good time to post would be during lunch hours or right after standard office hours, or right after dinner, times when most working men (who are our primary target audience) are most likely to be online on Facebook. The good thing about social media management apps is that they can do this job for you, along with timely reshares. Another thing you can do, which is something that may take a little time to master, is to see the kind of buzz words or media in your post that has the maximum impact. Some words and phrases are positively taken up by social media users whereas some phrases induce negative reactions. By pairing the outreach you had on a particular post with the kind of content presented in it, it is easy to identify the kind of content your audience enjoys and cater tailor made content to them. By combining the above two ideas, you can post different kinds of content at different times of the day, ensuring that