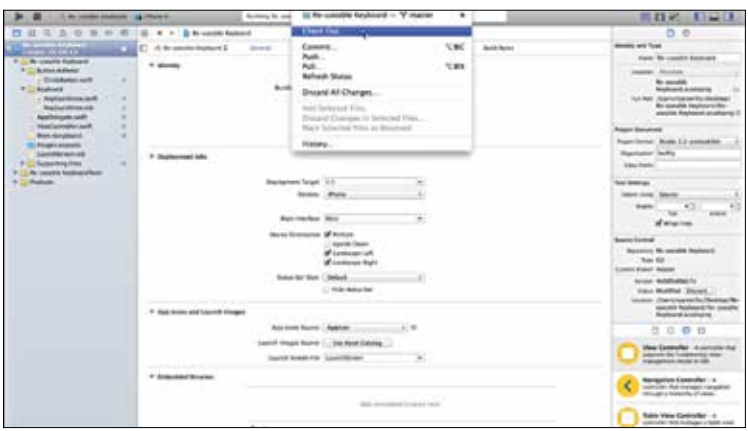
What is GitHub?

Github is a Git-powered, web based repository hosting service. It hosts millions of open source software projects from millions of developers in the world. Git maintains version controlling locally on your PC. It also keeps a copy of your project on their servers, which allows for collaborative development with the help of developers from across the world.

github
SOCIAL CODING

How to make a new Xcode project using GitHub:


To make a new XCode project on GitHub, just start a new project and click on GitHub. You will be prompted to choose a place to save your new project.