

6. Norton Identity Safe

Norton has been around for a long time. So this is a pretty good and wholesome app. It acts as a one point hub for all your security management options. It can be locked using a security code. It stores all your important information like passwords, credit card details, website cookies etc. It also has a password generator which you can store and use. The app is free of cost and you should definitely have this on your phone.

7. Best Phone Security Pro

Don't judge an app by its name. This is a really good app. What it does is that whenever someone will try to open your device, an alarm will go off. Sounds fancy, doesn't it? You can even record your own alarm to go off (my personal favourite is "Shame!" on repeat)

You should manage your passwords using secure apps to ensure you never lose your social accounts

The app also uses the front camera to take a picture of the intruder. And last time we checked, iPhones have a great front camera.
