

IS HOME AUTOMATION THE NEXT BIG TECHNOLOGY?

Cost might be a limiting factor at the moment but home automation is definitely creating waves in the consumer segment.

Though it sounds cool to enter a home and have your air-conditioning set to the right temperature, your bath water already warmed up just the way you like it and for your entertainment system to start automatically with just the right music playing, there are some real-world factors that hinder the adoption of such technologies. Money is undoubtedly the prime factor.