A few general tips on building/sustaining a good YouTube channel

Once you have a good idea on what sort of content you need to put up on your channel, it's good to know about these general tips that would help in building and sustaining a good YouTube channel:

Tips to keep it rolling!

Update the channel regularly

It's a good idea to create a schedule to upload videos – this way, your viewers would know when to tune in for your next video.

No matter the topic, try to inculcate some jokes

Okay, forcing yourself to be funny could be counter-productive. But if you have a genuine feel for the topic and the people you are communicating to, a few jokes would go a long way in making them feel at ease.
