

channel like the total number of Views, Subscribers and the 'Add widget' button. And when you click on that button you will see a list of widgets that you can add along with the ones that have been added. Each widget has some of the few standard sections on them which include:

- Move section: Hover over the grid icon and drag the section to where you'd like it on the page.
- Remove section: Click the X to remove the section from your dashboard.
- Customize section: Click the gear button (Comments and Videos sections only).

The widgets that you can add include:

- Videos - This widget offers you basic information about the most recent videos on your channel. The number of videos being shown in this depends on the value set in Customize section for the widget, which we will go into later. Below each video title you can see the number of Views, Comments, Likes and Dislikes and also the Edit button. Clicking on this button takes you to the video editing page in the Video manager, which will also be covered later in this chapter. The drop down menu beside the button lets you directly go to a specific tab in the Video manager for the particular video instead of the default 'Info and Settings' tab.
- Analytics - The analytics widget shows you some of the most basic statistics over the last 28 days related to your channel in a small view. The stats include the total watch time in minutes, Views, Subscriber change (growth/reduction) and the estimated revenue in dollars. All the stats are accompanied by graphs beside them that reflect the overall trend over the month. Clicking on the View All button below the widget will take you to the dedicated Analytics page.
- Comments - This widget shows you the latest comments on your channel across your videos. Basic information like how long ago the comment was posted and the name of the video on which it was posted are also visible. Clicking on 'Reply' takes you to the comment on the video page with a reply box ready for you to type.
- Tips - In the Tips widget you see some suggestions based on your channel that could help improve it.

That's about it for the different widgets that you can add. The Videos and Comments widgets have a Customize section that lets you modify a few parameters about the widget. For the comments widget, it's pretty simple
