

a dream for many. But as shown by the fact that not everyone who dreams it makes it happen, it's not as simple as it may sound like. There are good lessons to be picked on this regard. This section essentially explains how YouTube's ad tools work which will enable you to use them optimally.

There's a reason why we have included YouTube's Creator Academy before anything else – by paying a visit to the Academy and perusing the guides, you can get a decent overview of the kind of work that would go into the making a successful channel. This way, you would get a realistic picture of the amount of time and involvement you would have to invest for a channel with the success level that you desire.

Video edits using the YouTube video editor

Unless you are uploading raw footage directly from the cell phone, you are going to require a good video editor to convert (possibly random) shots into coherent videos. There are some great video editors out there like Sony Vegas Pro and Final Cut Pro, and we've discussed these in previous chapters. But you can easily do basic edits for free using the built-in editor that comes with YouTube.

You won't have to download any additional software either. In fact, you won't even have to manage the video library. You can just upload the videos as private so that you can splice them together.

Giving you a complete run through of how to edit using the tool is beyond the scope of this article. But the basic guide is easily available if you Google it and mastering it is no rocket science. Using the editor,

Edit you way to celebrity!
