

- Overlay ads - These are the semi transparent pop up ads that appear on top of your video.
- Skippable video ads - These ads pop up either before or during your video and can be skipped after 5 seconds.
- Non-skippable video ads - With no option to skip, the viewer has to watch whole of it before he can start watching your videos.
- Bumper ads - Bumper ads are added to the start of our video (hence the name bumper) and are less than 6 seconds. These ads cannot be skipped
- Sponsored cards - Small cards of different sizes are put on top of your video.

There are different types of advertisements that are embedded into your YouTube video and channel. The above screenshot shows a display ad on the left and a skip-able video ad being played in the player window Display and overlay advertisements are only displayed on desktop while all the other types are common across all the platforms including mobile devices. Go through all the types of ads, and select the ones that you think your audience wouldn't mind and would actually help them.

Also, becoming a YouTube partner doesn't mean that you cannot upload your videos anywhere. You would still own the content you created and can upload to as many different places as you want.

How to earn money through sponsorship, endorsement and product placement?

Sponsorship is how most big YouTubers earn their big bucks. So if you want to step up your game and earn more money, getting a sponsor is the
