

Tube. PewDiePie or Felix Arvid Ulf Kjellberg was born in Sweden, but currently resides in the UK. He started off by recognizing that there was a void in the field of gaming on YouTube. He started making gameplay videos and uploading them. When he told his parents that he wanted to give up other pursuits to make videos full-time, his parents completely rejected the idea and even stopped supporting him. During this time, he funded his earlier videos by working at a hot-dog stand. While he mostly focused on gaming, he also branched out to comedy and doing video logs. Many YouTubers have tried to replicate PewDiePie's success and have failed. When he started off, he started treating his subscribers and followers with respect and engaged with them regularly. His engagement with his audience can be seen as one of the biggest factors of his success. At the time of writing of this article, he had uploaded around 3400 videos. He has racked up 52 million subscribers, making his channel the largest in terms of subscribers. Interesting note - he had initially named his channel PewDie, because that combines 'Pew', the sound of a laser gun and Die, which is what usually happens in a game when you're shot at by a laser gun. Then how come his channel is called PewDiePie? Well, he simply forgot the password to the first one.
