

Graphics on the smartphones get better every year whole new way of playing and selling games altogether. The Google Play Store and the Apple App store could turn your smartphone into a portable gaming machine in a matter of seconds. The future looks bright and fun for the handheld industry with new technology coming out and scientists finding new ways of making computer chips smaller and processing power better. We sure have come a long way since AA batteries, and yet we have a longer way to go. d