

KEYBOARD AND MOUSE

Gaming or typing, we tell you what to consider while you're out buying them.

Unless you want to convert your PC into a server, you are going to need input devices to interact with it. While they may seem trivial, having a keyboard whose keys get jammed halfway is not a good thing when your project deadlines are closing in fast. The same frustration can be brought to you by a mouse which makes the pointer move in unpredictable ways. Yes, they are as essential as anything else, or maybe more.

Once the PC has been assembled and the display has been connected, it is keyboard and mouse you would interact with regularly. You will hold them, move them and maybe spill coffee over them too.