APFS file system

macOS High Sierra, which is coming this fall brings an entirely new file system to Mac. Called as APFS (Apple File System), it replaces the 20 years old HFS+ file system. All the future versions of macOS will be running APFS. It is faster and more stable than HFS+. It is built on a 64-bit architecture, built-in encryption, and crash-safe protection.

Cross site tracking prevention

If you are browsing for any product on an e-commerce site, that product makes its way as an advertisement to Facebook or other websites that you
