

with our accents. Not as badly as before of course, but still. Lastly some more thought needs to be put into developing better ways to interact with the device. Touch and voice is great and all for now but with such a small screen maybe Apple to think out of the box and come up with an entirely new input method? 