

APPLE TV

Apple's bid to get a slice of your living room time. Does Apple understand television and entertainment well enough though? Lets find out.

Apple might have lured the world with its iPhones, and MacBook, but the Cupertino-based giant has another box for you to dive into. It's the Apple TV. The first Apple TV was launched with the moniker iTV in 2007. However, a few years later, in order to avoid a long drawn out legal battle with the already existing British broadcaster Independent Television (ITV), Apple decided to change the name of its device from iTV to Apple TV. The 2nd generation Apple TV came in 2010, 3rd generation in 2012, and the latest 4th generation in 2015. Apple TV is a digital media player which lets you access video content through various sources like Netflix, YouTube, iTunes, and Hulu. Distinct from its
