

The greatest hits

The buzz about YouTube wouldn't be half complete without a new video becoming the most viewed video of all-time, so in an effort to analyse the trends that swept the world of video off its feet, here are some of the most popular most viewed videos of all-time.

1. Ronaldinho: Touch of Gold; by Nikesoccer (2005) - This video has a meagre 250,000ish views, but is on this list for its historical importance. It was the first viral video on the internet. This was also a time when football stars were the most recognisable in the world, and the autotuned lyrics of prepubescent teenagers didn't evoke a tsunami of online support.
2. Evolution of Dance; by Judson Laipply (2006) - This was the first time the fraternity of online content consumers recognised that an individual touch was as important to content as high production value. In the pixels on the screen, you can see the effort put in by a middle aged white man.
3. Charlie Bit My Finger; by HDCYT (2007) - It was quite literally a child biting another child's finger. It was, however, far superior in terms of nuance than what followed it.
4. Bad Romance; by LadyGagaVEVO (2009) - Here starts the rule of popstars. And they have never looked back since. Interestingly, 3 of the top videos of all time come from VEVO channels.
5. Baby; by JustinBieberVEVO (2010) - Another VEVO entry, this video was truly viral. If you were connected to the internet, you'd have heard about this song. By virtue of anecdotal evidence, this was around the time that YouTube truly became the official video content host for the entire globe.
6. Gangnam Style; by officialpsy (2012), and Despacito; by LuisFonsiVEVO (2017) - They both deserve to be on the list because of the sheer popularity they gained, but they aren't radically different from their predecessors.
